Mrs. Dan Daly, Wife of Comedian, ers Hotel.

Mrs. Dan Daly, wife of the "funny man" who played with the New Yorkers at the Century Theater last week, reported yea-terday afternoon to Chief of Detectives Des-mond that she had been robbed of valuable jewelry aggregating in value $1,000 and $65. in cash. The theft, it was reported, took place in her apartments in the Planters

The missing fewels were described by Mrs. Daly as follows: One sunburst, plare Mrs. Daiy as follows: One unburst, was shaped and formed of diamonds set in a filigree of gold; one turquoise ring, surrounded by small diamonds; another turquoise ring; a diamond and amethyst rings. one circle ring, set with pearls and rubless pin with the initials "D. D." set in diamonds; one necklace of heavy gold, see

Both Mr. and Mrs. Daly declare that the robbery was bona fide, and not a scheme of to advertise, of the variety which has become historical. According to Mrs. Daly's story, the booty was taken from a chate-laine bag, which was locked in a bureau drawer in her room. She cannot under-stand how the thing could have happened, as she and Mr. Daly were seidom out of the apartment at the same time, even eating as she and Mr. Daly were seidom out of the apartment at the same time, even eating their meals there.

Mr. Daly, whose dislike for St. Louis is well known, was in no happy frame of mind yesterday evening when representatives of the press tried to secure some details of the press tried to secure some details of the press tried to secure a stagehand was induced to carry a card to Mr. Daly in his dressing-room. The some-shifter had hardly disappeared before a commotion was heard in the region of the dressing-rooms. Presently a voice which seemed familiar to those who have seen "The Belle of New York" was heard above the tumuit.

"Take those cards away," it said, "and don't bring any more. See?"

The stagehand came back, looking very pale and frightened. When he recovered his breath sufficiently to talk he announced that there was "nothing doing." The robbery is said to have occurred between 1 o'clock Friday morning and 7:20 o'clock the same afternoon. At the later hour Mrs. Daly looked into her chatelaine bag and found it empty.
